

SSCC Labels

Serial Shipping Container Code pallet label requirements

Are you supplying products into Countdown, New World or Pak 'n' Save? If you are supplying your product to any of their locations, you will need to include an SSCC label on your pallets. Below is a quick overview about SSCC labels and how we can help you.

What is a Serial Shipping Container Code?

- An SSCC is the GS1 Identification Key used to identify a logistic unit
- The GS1 logistics SSCC label is used to uniquely identify specific information about the logistic unit, clearly and consisely in a standard format. This helps to facilitate the process of moving products through the Supply Chain quickly and efficiently.
- The SSCC enables the unit to be tracked individually – benefitting order and delivery tracking and automated goods receiving.
- It provides a unique number for the delivery which can be utilised as a reference number to provide further detailed information regarding the contents of the load via an associated Advanced Shipping Notice (ASN)
- The SSCC label barcode links to all ASN details on the purchase order:
 - Product
 - Batch
 - Quantity
 - Expiry Date

What are the benefits of SSCC labels?

- It uniquely identifies logistics units for global tracking and identification
- It uses a global industry standard, avoiding the need to use multiple labels
- One SSCC label can be used throughout the Supply Chain
- Provide a virtually unlimited numbering capacity
- Enables electronic business transactions by utilising ASNs
- Enables faster transactional data information gathering
- Improves data integrity and is cost saving
- Allows DCs and suppliers to work collaboratively to lower the end to end Supply Chain costs
- Improves accuracy, speed and efficiency of the business
